"For me, winning the world title in Singapore was something I never thought I would do at 60 years young. The team worked so hard to get there, competing in nine races in one day! I remember miles of smiles, hugs, kisses and tears. I'm still smiling."
Sue, World Champion Dragon Boat Paddler, Breast Cancer Survivor

"As coach I love the commitment of our paddlers who give all that they possibly can during a training session yet return time and time again for more. I love the feeling of being first to cross the finish line and the fact that 22 paddlers are connected and in sync."

Lorraine, World Champion Dragon Boat Paddler, Coach and Breast Cancer Survivor

DAGGC are the current world champions and are looking forward to defending their title in Miami, Florida in April 2009. (Breast Cancer Dragon Boat World Championships).

Come along Sunday mornings at 7am. We have openings for new paddlers in the Social & Open Teams.
